Your organisation must consult its stakeholders and involve a representative community of researchers ranging from R1 to R4 (<https://euraxess.ec.europa.eu/europe/career-development/training-researchers/research-profiles-descriptors>), as well as appoint a Committee overseeing the process and a Working Group responsible for the implementation of the HR Excellence in Research process.

Provide information on how the researchers groups were involved in the GAP-analysis:

Stakeholder group	Consultation format	Contributions
Academics	Face-to-face and online meetings	Served as a primary tool for the Gap Analysis (together with input from the administrative staff), offering an in-depth understanding of ULBS academics' perspectives and concerns related to their experiences at the University.
Ethical and professional aspects	Online meetings	Ensured that the HRS4R process is grounded in a strong framework of integrity, legality, and professionalism — essential for creating a supportive and responsible research environment.
Professional development and training courses	Online meetings	Contributed to the HRS4R process by assessing existing opportunities, identifying skills gaps, and proposing targeted actions to enhance researchers' continuous learning, career progression, and alignment with Charter and Code principles.

Stakeholder group	Consultation format	Contributions
Administrative staff	Meetings (5 face-to-face) and online collaborative work on shared documents - a team of approximately ten participants	Offered valuable insights into the extent of implementation of the 40 Charter & Code principles, as well as information on legal constraints, relevant regulations, procedures, and available documentation at ULBS.

Please describe how the Committee overseeing the process was appointed and how it worked (meetings, decisions, etc.):

The Supervisory Committee was constituted under the leadership of the Rector of Lucian Blaga University of Sibiu, in close collaboration with the Vice-Rector for Students and Community Relations, the Vice-Rector for Research, Innovation, and Internationalization, and the Head of the Research, Development, and Innovation Office.

Its composition reflected a strategic coordination structure, ensuring representation from key institutional leadership involved in research policy and governance.

The Committee's activities were carried out through a series of structured working meetings, during which members planned the implementation stages, monitored the progress of ongoing tasks, and ensured alignment with the objectives of the HRS4R process. These meetings also provided a platform for in-depth analysis, discussion, and refinement of key documents prepared for each stage—such as the GAP Analysis, the Internal Consultation Report, and the OTMR Checklist—thus ensuring a collaborative and evidence-based approach throughout the process.

Please describe how the Working Group doing the Gap Analysis was appointed:

The appointment process was coordinated under the leadership of the Rector, in collaboration with the Vice-Rector for Students and Community Relations, Vice-rector for Research, Innovation and Internationalization, and the Head of the Research, Development, and Innovation Office.

The Working Group responsible for the Gap Analysis was appointed by the university leadership to ensure broad representation and inclusiveness across all relevant institutional levels. Members were selected from key academic and administrative units, including teaching staff, researchers, doctoral candidates, and postdoctoral researchers, to achieve a balanced composition that reflects the perspectives of early-career researchers, postdoctoral fellows, independent researchers, and full professors. This diverse structure ensured that a wide range of professional experiences and career stages were represented in the analysis.

The activity of the Working Group was organized into collaborative work teams, enabling each member to actively contribute their views on potential gaps related to the implementation of the Charter and Code principles.

This participatory approach supported a comprehensive and evidence-based assessment and laid the foundation for the subsequent development of the Gap Analysis and HRS4R documentation.
